During the past 8 years, Innovator Capital's CleanEquity unit has reviewed over 5,000 companies in 11 sectors and over 70 sub-sectors. It will source 600 companies for the 2016 event, from which the Top 30 will be selected to present at the conference. These companies must meet high standards of management ability & integrity, unique technological differentiation protected by intellectual property and high, global revenue potential.

The invitation only conference, provides an intimate and collegiate setting for inventors and entrepreneurs to share their stories with delegates - key decision makers looking to assist them with reaching their commercial and strategic goals. CleanEquity's one-to-one meeting team works tirelessly to facilitate introductions and meetings before, during and after the conference.

One of the key sessions for 2016 will be taking an in-depth look at the technology developments and opportunities in the wastewater plants of the future.

CleanEquity Monaco collaborates with a number of internationally recognised partners to ensure that all plenary sessions & workshops are captivating, thought provoking and enlightening.

These partners have included:

- Aster Capital
- ARUP
- BP
- Cisco
- Conduit Ventures
- E.ON
- Earth Capital Partners
- GE Ventures
- Qualcomm
- Rockport Capital Partners
- The Climate Group
- Toyota Motor Corporation
- University of Auckland
- University of Cambridge
- University of Oxford
- Vodafone

We are delighted to announce our continuing relationship with the international law firm Covington & Burling LLP.

Andrew Jack, Partner and co-chair of Covington & Burling's Clean Energy and Climate industry group, commented:

"CleanEquity Monaco has an established reputation as one of the leading events on the global cleantech calendar, bringing together entrepreneurs, investors and industrialists passionate about deploying and commercializing cutting-edge technologies from across the globe. Now in our seventh year of sponsorship, we have been proud each year to support and assist CleanEquity and many of its impressive presenting companies through the year-round participation of a dedicated group of our senior technology, policy and transactional lawyers from our offices in Europe, Asia and the United States.

In a world that is increasingly complex and highly regulated, Covington & Burling have built a powerful firm-wide capability to help our clients navigate the intersection of law and policy, a capability, which is aligned perfectly with the dynamic development of the global cleantech sector and the focus of events such as CleanEquity Monaco. The firm's transactional and technology expertise coupled with our ability to advise on the toughest legal, policy and commercial challenges produces consistent results for our clients' businesses."

CleanEquity is delighted also to announce the continued support of its key media partner PR Newswire, the global media and communications expert.
